Glendale
Unites as
One Man
To Honor
Fire Victims

THE movement being inaugurated to hold a benefit performance for the families of the Glendale fire victims, as expected, is meeting with an instantaneous response.

First comes the Tuesday Afternoon club with the offer of the use of their clubhouse in which to hold the performance.

Next comes almost every organization in the city with the pledge of active support.

A plan has been suggested that each organization in the city furnish some kind of a number for the program. This will bring the entire citizenship into one body for the benefit of the testimonial.

WITH the holding of a benefit performance each individual in the city can contribute his or her mite without undue publicity, which is as it should be, for generally the most generous givers dislike to be known as the donors.

Arrangements have also been made with the banks of Glendale to be depositories for the holding of a relief fund.

A LIST of the banks is given elsewhere. Make out a check and mail it or take your subscription in person and deposit it to the credit of the Glendale Fire Victims' Testimonial Fund at any one of the banks listed.

WILL October join the ranks with the other million-dollar permit months? Yesterday's permits total $110,000, which is going some for one day, without any extremely large amounts to help swell the total.

Yesterday's permits bring the total for October to nearly one-half million dollars, with the month only a few days over half gone. By the middle of next week, if the present rate is continued, permits for the year to date will go over the eight million mark. This is some record to boast of and will probably be the means of Glendale moving up a peg or two in the standing of California cities in building activities.

UP to the first of the month she was eighth, but running close to Sacramento and San Diego, which stood sixth and seventh in the list.

We notice that Alhambra, as we predicted, took full advantage of its last month's permit total which was over a million dollars. The large amount was accounted for to a considerable degree by the permit taken out by the Southern California Edison Co. for a warehouse, this one permit amounting to $800,000.

IN its advertising Alhambra claims to stand third among California cities. Even this is not true for the one month, as she stood fifth for September. For the year up to date her standing is considerably lower than Glendale's.

A large month, of course, is desirable, but heavy permits every month is preferable.

MONTROSE C. OF C. ASKS VERDUGO ROAD REPAIR

The repair of Verdugo road was the subject of the following communication from Mark S. Collins of La Crescenta, received last night by the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce:

"At the last meeting of the Montrose Chamber of Commerce it was voted to ask the Glendale Chamber of Commerce if it would use its influence to have the many bad and dangerous places in Verdugo road between Glendale and Montrose repaired."

The subject was referred to the highway and bridge committee, of which P. J. Hayselden of 901 South Glendale avenue is chairman.

MILK TRUCK AND AUTO IN CRASH

Broken glass painted with milk was scattered about the intersection of Glendale avenue and San Fernando road about 4:30 this morning as the result of a collision. A truck owned by the Calla Lily Creamery at 1245 East Windward road and driven by Arthur R. Reade was struck by an automobile piloted by G. H. Payson of Grand View. The truck had its windshield broken and its top torn. A number of bottles of milk were broken.

FIRE PREVENTION IS DISCUSSED BY C. OF C. DIRECTORS

Need of Taking Prompt Precautions Was Emphasized

Prevention of another forest fire in this vicinity was discussed at last night's session of the directors of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce.

Glendale's entrance into the Western Division of the Angeles Forest Protective association was looked upon with favor. The purpose and function of this organization was explained by C. G. Dunwoody, supervisor of its Pasadena district.

The Angeles Protective association is composed of volunteers who have been trained in the most efficient methods of fighting forest fires. In Pasadena it has six leaders with squads of ten men each. In the event of a moderate sized forest fire this corps is able to extinguish the blaze. In the case of a larger fire, each of the men is capable of assuming leadership over inexperienced volunteers.

Protection of life as well as property is one of the keystones of this organization. In order that they may be readily distinguished while on duty, each of its members wears a uniform consisting of corduroy trousers, flannel shirts, Stetson sombreros and leather puttees. Each leader is instructed to keep in close contact with his men at all times.

The vital importance of keeping the foothills forested in order to assure nearby communities of a water supply was emphasized by L. T. Rowley of 334 Vine street. He expressed his opinion that this is just as important to Glendale as to any of the other municipalities.

The desirability of establishing a fire station in Verdugo Canyon was commented upon by City Manager W. H. Reeves. He stated that M. Walters of the realty firm of Barnum & Walters had offered to donate a lot on Verdugo road in Sparr Heights for such an establishment.

The impossibility of transferring equipment from one section of the city to another in case of a serious conflagration was outlined by P. J. Hayselden of 901 South Glendale avenue. He called attention to the fact that Casa Verdugo has no fire hydrants and that a fire starting there could get beyond control before reaching Glendale.

LAST RITES FOR VICTIM OF BIG HILL FIRE

Funeral of Clarence Edwards Is Held Today

A spirit of appreciation for the sacrifice, which resulted in his death, characterized the funeral services this afternoon in the Congregational church for Clarence Edwards of 369 West California avenue who died Saturday fighting the flames in the San Rafael hills.

The altar platform was heaped high with a profusion of flowers which filled the church with their fragrance.

Comrades of Mr. Edwards in the World War served as pallbearers and the service was attended by a number of Legionnaires.

The service at the church was impressive in its simplicity. Following the organ prelude by Miss Lilla E. Litch of 424 North Louise street an appropriate solo was sung by Keamoku A. Louis, who formerly was a neighbor at 317 West California avenue.

Tribute to the devotion of Clarence Edwards to his mother, to his country and finally to his community, was paid by Rev. B. Dudley Snudden, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Pasadena, who delivered the funeral sermon.

Rev. C. M. Calderwood, pastor of the First Congregational church and historian of the local post of the American Legion, officiated at the services. He praised Mr. Edwards as a comrade, a Mason and a citizen.

Masonic services were conducted at the grave. A firing squad was recruited from the National Guard and taps were blown from the slope of a nearby hillside.

The city hall, where Clarence Edwards was employed for almost three years, was closed this afternoon during the services.

Sympathy for Mrs. Johanna Edwards who gave her only treasure, her son, for the community was expressed or felt by all. The knowledge that before many years she will be at his side sustained her during the services.

NEW POSTOFFICE TO HAVE FAR LARGER FLOOR SPACE

No further information in regard to the new postoffice is available, according to the admission of George Hallett, assistant postmaster, last night to the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce. He called attention, however, to the fact that the new floor area will be two and one-half times the present floor area, while this in turn is twice the area of the space formerly occupied. He stated that additional information is expected upon the return about Sunday of Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson.

GLENDALE CITIZENS TO UNITE IN TESTIMONIAL TO VICTIMS OF HILL FIRE

All of the City's Banks to Receive Contributions of Money to Aid Those Left Behind by Clarence Edwards and J. W. McGahan

A BENEFIT PERFORMANCE WILL BE GIVEN

Civic Organizations, Clubs and the Like Will Unite in Great Entertainment to Be Given in Tuesday Afternoon Clubhouse

We glory in deeds of valor enacted on fields of battle—in Argonne Forest's gloomy shades or on River Marne's encrimsoned banks, when comrades pressed forward, shoulder to shoulder, against the Hun's serried ranks, the touch of buddies on either side adding to the feeling of confidence with which every American soldier enters the fray.

But far braver deeds than any chronicled by war correspondents often pass by almost unnoticed, in the rush and hurry of the swift moving days—deeds of men in the duty calls and think not of the perils that confront them. But the supreme sacrifice of Glendale's two fire victims shall not thus be suffered to sink into oblivion.

When Clarence Edwards and J. W. McGahan went to their death last Saturday, no martial music cheered them on, no marching comrades ringed them round with walls of flesh. They saw their homes, their fellow citizens, their own home city in danger, and they faced that hell of fire dauntlessly, determined to beat back the devouring flames or die. And they died. No pitying comrade bent sorrowfully to catch the last whispered word and take a last loving message to dear ones left behind. They died facing to the front, their hands still grasping forward as if to tear away the blazing tree branches.

One of these men, brave Clarence Edwards, had served his country on the battle fields of France, and was at the time of his death serving his city faithfully and well, while caring for the needs of his aged mother, whose only stay and support he was. The other had for years devoted his time and talents to the rearing of an American home, aided by the devoted wife and mother of his children.

And shall these humble heroes, whose deeds of valor shine as the stars and who gave their lives so heroically for their home city, have no further requiem and their act of devotion no real recognition? The people of Glendale, with one voice, give forth a mighty "NO!" And so the entire community has united, not only in the giving of a testimonial in money, but in organizing a monster benefit entertainment to be given next week by local talent which will represent all the civic organizations, clubs and the like in the city.

The Tuesday Afternoon club gladly offered their free use of its auditorium for the occasion.

When the matter was mentioned to Mayor Spencer Robinson, he in his big hearted way at once agreed to head the program as the representative of the city government, declaring we could not do too much on such an occasion to express our realization in some degree of what these men did. The same response came from George Karr, head of the Rotary club, who said he would arrange for some talented member of his organization to represent it. George Whitaker, vice president of the Exchange club was equally ready declaring the matter would be taken up at the weekly luncheon today and that probably President D. Ripley Jackson would be the club representative.

Jesse Smith as president of the chamber of commerce and as a prominent member of the Knights of Columbus, pledged those organizations for anything they can do in providing artists or boosting for the benefit, adding that the chamber had appointed a committee to see what could be done for the families of the men, and this committee would cooperate. A. L. Ferguson, as president of the Kiwanis club, said it would be brought before his directors at a special meeting to be held tonight and he had no doubt about the action they would take in providing a program number and aiding the benefit in other ways.

Y. M. Hollister, president of the subject.

Disapproval of a return of the "pork barrel" in place of the present budget system in national government was expressed last night by the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce.

A resolution passed by the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, opposing this action by the next session of congress, was endorsed upon motion of W. E. Hewitt of 319 East Randolph street and L. H. Wilson of 1034 South San Fernando road. There was no discussion on the subject.

KENDALL TUNE WEARS THE SMILE THAT NEVER FADES

There's a real smile in Glendale today.

It's a smile that you couldn't file off. In fact it is one of those everlasting grins that take you at the very first glance.

This smile is spread all over the face of little Kendall Tune, the fighting little fellow living at 1801 Vassar street, who has been one of the contestants in the subscription campaign of the Glendale Daily Press, which closed at 6 o'clock last night.

Kendall won the dandy little automobile that will be given to the winner of the contest, and now, notwithstanding his misfortune of being crippled, he will be able to ride about in his own machine.

In this contest Kendall got a late start, but within two weeks was third from the top. Hard, earnest work carried "Ken" to the top of the heap and when the count was made last night it was found that he had grabbed the blue ribbon—the car, which will be handed over to him at the circus in the Glendale Daily Press hall Friday night.

GLENDALE C. OF C. LEND'S SUPPORT TO BALL PROJECT

Acts Unanimously After Hearing Promoters' Letter

The Glendale chamber of commerce through its board of directors, last night agreed to lend its moral support to the proposed Glendale baseball project.

This action was taken upon motion of D. L. Gregg of 107 North Brand boulevard, seconded by P. J. Hayselden of 901 South Glendale avenue. It was passed unanimously.

Secretary E. F. Sanders read the following communication on the subject from Frank A. Kerwin of Los Angeles and G. E. Leischner of Hollywood, promoters of the project:

"You have undoubtedly heard Glendale is about to have one of the finest semipro baseball parks in Southern California.

"The games to be played in this park will be of the professional class and entered in the Triple A division of the winter league, playing under the auspices of the Southern California Baseball Managers' association, an organization known and recognized throughout the country."

The management of the Glendale club will be composed of Frank A. Kerwin, who is also secretary of the Southern California Baseball Managers' association, and G. E. Leischner, also an officer in the association, are already in communication with the Seattle club, known as the Boston Red Sox, offering them propositions to bring their team to this city for their spring training.

"You gentlemen will readily understand and quickly grasp the wonderful possibilities from an advertising standpoint in such a program. You also understand and realize that funds are necessary to carry out this program. We have not asked Glendale for anything with the exception of your moral support and good will and that is all that we are asking at this time."

"We assure you that your cooperation and assistance are needed and will be sincerely appreciated."

SEWER BOND ISSUE IS DISCUSSED BY C. OF C. BOARD

"It Must Go Over," Says W. E. Hewitt; Others Agree

The bond issue for the installation of a local sewer system was informally discussed last night by the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce.

Councilman C. E. Kimlin, who introduced the subject, stated that he did not believe anyone who is cognizant of the need for a sewer system in this district will oppose the bond issue.

The city council, according to Mr. Kimlin, intends to appoint a sewer engineer as soon as possible. He predicted that this engineer will be able to make an estimate of the probable cost of the system within two weeks.

"The local sewer situation is very critical," remarked W. E. Hewitt of 319 East Randolph street. "This sewer contract has got to go over—no ifs or ands about it."

The complexity of the problem of planning the local sewer system, owing to the fact that interceptors must be placed in the probable centers of population, was explained by Mr. Hewitt.

Whether the proposed 48-inch main line will be large enough in the future was a question raised by George H. Bentley of 460 West Los Feliz road. Mr. Kimlin replied that it has been estimated that this is large enough to dispose of the sewage from a district inhabited by 500,000 persons.

"I don't think we have anything to worry about on that score," he remarked. "All we have to do is to make the connection and let the other people worry about that."

California was represented at the convention by eleven delegates: Three from Long Beach, two from Sacramento, one from San Francisco, two from Bakersfield, one from San Diego and two from Glendale.

"A feature of the convention," remarked Mr. Waring, "was the spirit of co-operation shown between the delegates. It was very successful."

"All the clubs throughout the country are doing real big work to help community life. For instance, in Mobile, Alabama, the club helped raise $8000 which to spread good cheer among the poor children at Christmas. In Sacramento the club is behind the boy scout movement and has established a camp for them. In other cities the clubs are actively participating in welfare work."

While in the east Mr. and Mrs. Waring visited their former home at Mountclair, New Jersey, and at New York City, their daughter, Miss Mabel Waring, who until recently was a resident of Glendale.

EXCHANGE CLUB HEARS ABOUT CONVENTION

W. C. Waring Tells of Visit of Self and Postmaster Jackson

The Glendale Exchange club, which met this noon in Jensen's Egyptian Village at 133 North Brand boulevard, had as its guest Contractor Peter L. Ferry, 614 E. Acacia avenue, who described some of his recent observations in Mexico.

The meeting also was attended by W. C. Waring of 719 South Maryland avenue who accompanied D. Ripley Jackson of 1800 S. Brand boulevard as a delegate at Springfield, Mass., to the annual convention of the National Exchange club.

Owing to the fact that Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Jackson and daughter, Miss Grace Anna Jackson, are still en route back to Glendale, Mr. Waring refrained from making any report on the convention until the next meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Waring reported a very enjoyable trip east with just enough excitement to make it worth while. While en route by steamship from New York to New Orleans they passed the City of Everett in the Gulf of Mexico. They noticed that this steamship was heavily laden.

About a day later it sank—stern first. Thirty lives were lost.

Postmaster Jackson was one of the "livest wires" at the convention, according to Mr. Waring. He added that California was spoken of more frequently than any other state in the union. He asserted that the convention is certain to be held in this state in 1925.

California was represented at the convention by eleven delegates: Three from Long Beach, two from Sacramento, one from San Francisco, two from Bakersfield, one from San Diego and two from Glendale.

"A feature of the convention," remarked Mr. Waring, "was the spirit of co-operation shown between the delegates. It was very successful."

NAVY DAY WILL BE OBSERVED IN GLENDALE

Tentative Date Is Oct. 27, Shortridge Is Invited Speaker

Navy Day will be observed in Glendale on or about October 27, which is the birthday of former President Theodore Roosevelt.

Senator Samuel Shortridge of San Francisco is to be invited to address a combined meeting of members of the three luncheon clubs and members of the chamber of commerce.

The board of directors of this organization last night looked with favor upon the proper observance of this occasion.

The subject was brought up through a communication read by Secretary E. F. Sanders from Marion Epply, chairman of National Navy Day for the Navy League, as follows:

"If you have not already done so, may I suggest the desirability of arranging your programs for the future so as to include a speech on the navy at least once a year. I believe a similar course could be followed with pleasure and profit to you with respect to the army."

"I need not remind you that in a government of public opinion, a resolution in support of the navy brought to the attention of your congressmen would be most valuable and I hope that you may see fit to lend your support to the proper maintenance of the navy permitted under the 5-3 ratio established at the Washington conference of 1922."

Another communication apropos to the subject was received from Frank Waterhouse, president of the Seattle chamber of commerce. This contained a resolution urging that the navy be kept at full strength and effectiveness allowed under the recent treaties and that recommendation made by the navy commission be adopted by congress.

FORTY MILLIONS IN INCOME TAXES FOR YEAR 1923

Indicating that people from all parts of the United States are moving into Los Angeles and vicinity, a report sent to Washington yesterday by Collector Rex Goodcell showed that the number of income tax items transferred into this district from other sections of the country since January 1, outnumbered the items transferred from Los Angeles to other internal revenue districts by 250 per cent.

His report showed that during the first nine months of the calendar year $31,214,659.56 in income taxes had been collected in the Los Angeles district, indicating that the total for the year will reach the $40,000,000 mark.

Eighty field deputies and seventy special internal revenue agents have been assigned to take part in the extensive four months delinquent income tax drive which has been inaugurated.

It is expected that new taxes will be disclosed by the investigations of the field deputies and revenue agents that will run close to the half-million mark. Where new tax is discovered, demand for payment will be made and distraint warrants will be issued in all cases where the tax is not remitted for within legal time.

Special attention is being given real estate profits by the investigators who are checking up returns for 1919, 1920, 1921 and 1922, with the real estate transfers for these years. Where taxpayers fail to voluntarily disclose real estate profits and file amended returns the maximum penalties will be imposed.

CUPID MART IS RUN FROM JAIL

DENVER, Colo., Oct. 17.—The only prisoner in the history of Colorado's penal institutions ever to operate a "matrimonial bureau" while incarcerated in the county jail is the unique distinction possessed by Ray W. Wood, a federal prisoner here, according to Warden Thomas Clemen.

The great volume of mail being received by Wood led to an investigation by the authorities, which revealed, according to Clemen, that Wood was in communication with a New York advertising agency in connection with the publication of matrimonial advertising. Wood is said to have admitted that his cell was the "bureau" from which he operated, but the fact that a postoffice box said to have been maintained by Wood was emptied of its contents daily, has led to the belief that he worked with confederates.

Glendale Suffers Loss of Millions—in Jest

Glendale will lose $1,213,277.79 during the next three months because of the negligence of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce.

A suggestion made by City Manager W. H. Reeves, which he estimated would be worth this sum to the city of Glendale as an advertising stunt, last night was deliberately and maliciously ignored. This was none other than that this community should establish a cashier near the Pacific Electric station to offer all holders of round-trip tickets a rebate of 13 cents—on the theory that the municipality does not intend to have its visitors robbed by the wrong fares.

The suggestion, which was made in a humorous vein, was accepted in the same spirit.

CHURCHES JOIN FORCES TO BACK VOLSTEAD LAW

The Federal Council of Churches has called for the assembly of church forces in Washington, October 14-16 to support the Prohibition Amendment.

The call is signed by 756 men and women, among them Prohibition Commissioner Roy A. Haynes, William Jennings Bryan, Henry K. Twitchell of New York, Mayor Huston Quin of Louisville, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of New York, Dr. John R. Mott of the Young Men's Christian Association, Bishops McDowell, Burke, Anderson and Mitchell of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Bishop Capers of the Episcopal diocese of Western Texas, Miss Evangeline Booth of the Salvation Army, the Rev. Dr. Nehemiah Boynton of New York, President McCracken of Vassar College and Mrs. Anna A. Gordon, President of the National Women's Christian Temperance Union.

The statement issued today says:

"The conference is based upon the following facts:

"First, there is in certain sections an alarming and unnecessary degree of violation of the statutes and a dangerous, widespread indifference to all kinds of laws which seem to interfere with so-called 'personal liberty.'"

"Second, this disregard of the fundamental processes of law enactment and law enforcement, if permitted to go unrestrained, will eventually manifest itself in increased violation of all law, and the rule of the mob will become the method of the vicious."

"Third—There is abundant evidence that the enemies of the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead act are carrying on a wide campaign of publicity, which is entirely false, concerning the degree of the violation of the prohibitory enactments, the purpose being to poison the public mind and bring back the open saloon under the deceptive disguise of legalization in favor of 'light wines and beer.'"

"Fourth—There is a serious lack of solidarity and eager activity among the leaders of the churches and religious societies in their co-operation with the officials who are sincerely working for the enforcement of these laws."

"Fifth—The overwhelming majority of the people of the United States are law-abiding citizens; they are unchangeably opposed to violation of laws; they do not respect those who are seeking to break down the Constitution, either as so-called 'bootleggers' or those who illegally buy intoxicating liquors."

TELEPHONE 40 YEARS AGO WAS SOME DIFFERENT

Forty years ago telephone operators were men and boys instead of girls. There was some difference also in the equipment used then and now, but the moral content then and now, especially in the necessity for great patience, seems to have been the same. One of the operators of the past breathed out the woes of his soul in the summer of 1882 to the editor of a newspaper published in Lynn, Massachusetts, as follows:

Mr. Editor: As I toil by night in the office, I discover that many people whose voices I come in contact with are not aware what is in the central office, and by your permission I will tell them. The operator at the central office is a man, and to attend to his duties properly he must possess the energy of despair, the patience of Job, the wisdom of Solomon, and a cast iron car. The business in the main is monotonous with a sauce of romance. Up at break of day at the beck and call of every grocer's boy and spittoon wrestler in town; awake at midnight answering the maudlin tones of any inebriate who wishes to palm off that stale old joke—(here I lift my hat in reverence for its age)—"Have something by wire?"

"Hello, hello" from night till morning. "Yes! all right, go ahead," and a portion of the time all is wrong, and going behind. This makes up the every day life of the operator.

Next in pure cussedness comes the magnetic athlete. Just as the operator is about to answer he rings again in your ear. Pleasant sensation! Once will satisfy reasonable people. Following them come the shouters and howlers. They lay back their ears and shriek. The neighbors hear it; the operator does not. Operators know a great many people by voice. Now that I have exposed a few of the mysteries of the profession, let me close with this request: Don't abuse the operator; don't bang the receivers; don't yell; treat the telephone as a modern invention of great importance, not for playing jokes, but for convenience, for sociability and for business.

Jolly Bachelors Are Preparing For Dances

Beginning with October 20, the first of a series of dancing parties that will continue throughout the winter and will be known as the "Jolly Bachelors' dance" will be given by Messrs. Donaldson and Burgess at the Odd Fellows' hall. Music is to be furnished by Kelly's Shrine Club orchestra. The dance will be held every Saturday, with the exception of a few nights, for which the Odd Fellows' hall has been dated ahead.

Mr. Donaldson for a number of years conducted Jolly Bachelor dances at Jerome, Ariz., and it is his policy to put on the better class of dancing parties. Mr. and Mrs. Donaldson and Mr. Burgess are newcomers to Glendale and are now making their home in this city.

Papyrus, Winner of English Derby, Here to Race America's Best, and Admiral Grayson's My Own

Turfmen and racegoers are divided in opinion as to whether Harry F. Sinclair's Zev or Admiral Cary T. Grayson's My Own should be selected as America's best three-year-old to meet Papyrus in the $100,000 international race at Belmont Park, New York, on October 20. The two American thoroughbreds have never met and unless they do meet before the Papyrus race there will be dissatisfaction in some quarters. The above photographs show heads of Papyrus (at right) and My Own. The picture of the English Derby winner was taken since the colt's arrival in state on the Aquitania.

GLENDALE BUILT BY GLENDALEANS FOR GLENDALEANS

Two residences which are being built in Glendale by Glendale men out of Glendale building materials for Glendale families are now nearing completion.

The houses are two six-room dwellings which are being built at 408 and 410 Howard street by Contractor Arthur L. Fryer of 424 Riverside drive. The principal material used is concrete building blocks made by the Concrete Brick and Tile company, 424 South San Fernando road. This has been installed under the direction of D. F. Reynolds of 904 East Wilson avenue. One of the bungalows is now being plastered inside and is ready for stuccoing. The other house is not so far advanced.

Some people boast of their blue blood, but the red brand is good enough for us.

Rev. and Mrs. V. Hunter Brink, formerly of Glendale, visited friends in this city on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. William P. MacMullin, who went north with the delegation to the Realtors' convention, are expected home the last of the week.

On Monday night, members of the Sons of Veterans and Auxiliary No. 7 of Glendale, who attended the inspection of the Phil Carney Auxiliary of the Pasadena Sons of Veterans, included Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Paugh, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Stuart, Mrs. Pearl Gillett and Mrs. Edna Pierce. On November 3 there will be inspection of the Glendale auxiliary, when the division commander will be present.

MRS. KEMPER IS RIVAL OF MATE AS DEER SLAYER

Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Kemper of La Crescenta and Glendale returned Monday from a six weeks' hunting trip to Strawberry Camp, Tuolumne county. A party of nine made the trip, during which they had plenty of snow, rain and mud, but a good time, nevertheless. The proof of the pudding is in the eating, and one Daily Press reporter is in a position to state that the Kempers brought home the venison. The honors for huntsmanship do not all go to Mr. Kemper, for Mrs. Kemper brought down one buck. In all, the party got four deer, bringing home some beautiful heads.

DIETRICH REALTY COMPANY MAKES MANY SALES

The Dietrich Realty Co., 133 1/2 South Brand, reports over one hundred and sixty thousand dollars' worth of sales during the past three weeks. The fall season is opening with a rush and there is every indication of an unusually active demand for homes this fall. It is the opinion of Mrs. Gaskill, the manager, that there will be ten buyers this winter for every reasonably priced property in the city. One of the most noticeable features, to date, is the increased demand for larger houses. Hollywood and Pasadena residents are buying here, especially in the foothill districts.

The assurance of a sewerage system, another large theatre, two good hotels, a new post office, another bank, as well as both Sun and Owl Drug stores, together with new buildings in every direction, indicate that "The Fastest Growing City in America" will continue to merit its proud title.

The Dietrich Co. is erecting three branch offices to take care of its rapidly growing business. One will be located on Keneth Road, one on South Brand and one near the new high school. Below is a list of the properties sold during the past three weeks:

522 Oak to W. B. Biel of Iowa; 209 West Doran to Fred Czerninski of La Crescenta; two acres and stone bungalow on San Fernando road to N. H. Stanley; 100x145 East Wilson to Mrs. L. Usher of Burbank; 705 Fairmont court to P. E. Gaskill of Glendale; 408 West Garfield to F. Yeager, of Glendale; 632 Alexander to C. W. Rush of Glendale; 100x150 Wing street to C. M. Briggs; northwest corner Randolph and Brand, 90x255 feet with modern nine room home to Mr. P. E. Gaskill of Glendale; 100x211 on Keneth road to Mr. Zinke of Wisconsin; ten acres and twelve-room house on Michigan avenue, La Crescenta, to Dr. Kimball of Hollywood.

SAPPHIRE BLUE TRINKETS

Sapphire blue is a color much in evidence at present and many delightful trinkets exploit this shade. A stunning ornament to be worn on a long chain is made of blue enamel with a delicate design in cut steel in the center. Long earrings of the same color accompany the necklace.

Sir Thomas Lipton and Mayor of Gloucester Exhibiting Cups for Which Fishermen Race

This photograph was made while the fleetest fishing schooners of the Gloucester fleet were waiting to start in the annual race. Sir Thomas is shown at the right holding the trophy he presented for the event. With him is William J. MacInnis, mayor of Gloucester, Mass., with the Prentice trophy.

In Winter, Don't Envy Film Stars in Summery Scenes, 'Cause It's Only "Studio Perspiration"

This is how it's done. Fine rubber tubing runs up the back of the neck of the actor or actress and through the hair, stopping at the forehead. When the time comes to make the close-up, the director or his assistant presses a bulb holding glycerine and water—and down rolls the "perspiration." It is possible that the close-up is made when the temperature is around zero and the signs of honest toil or the heroine's desperate struggle with the villain freeze on her face.

The problem of obtaining the utmost satisfaction and economy in a motor car resolves itself into a very simple formula when considered in the clear light of logic.

Doesn't it hold true today, as always, that in purchases of importance it is wisest and safest to buy only the best?

And isn't it perfectly evident that a fine car,—particularly when that car sells for the comparatively low price of the Packard Single-Six,—is bound to cost you less for maintenance than any other car less finely built?

T. A. CLUB WOMEN HEAR HOBSON AT NOON LUNCHEON

Mrs. Lorbeer Endorses His Statements and Hearers
Applaud

Appeal to the club women of Glendale for both moral and financial support for the fight against narcotics through a campaign of education was made by Captain R. P. Hobson, chairman of education for the International Association of Narcotics, at the luncheon meeting of the Tuesday Afternoon club yesterday, attended by 150 club members.

Hobson it is hoped to reach all of the young people in the land—in the schools through the teachers, and in the homes through the parents. "It is a campaign of prevention, whereby they will be taught the truth about narcotics. That knowledge of the truth will stir in them the very deepest motives of self preservation. If these motives are developed, all the lure of the peddler will be in vain."

Mrs. J. B. Lorbeer, vice-president of the Los Angeles district California Federation of Women's clubs, was the next speaker and gave a very interesting talk. She said in part, "The outlook of service of women's clubs this year is broader than ever before. If the women get behind things like this narcotic campaign, they cannot help but go through. You must remember that you are not only a member of the local club but are a unit of the 2,000,000 club women of this country. The new line of work that the clubwomen are just beginning to see is that of providing some outlet of activity for a child between six years of age and club age by starting junior auxiliaries of their clubs, etc. Heretofore the vigor and strength of the young people has not been put to any particular use. Now they are being taught to do social work and other interesting things."

Mrs. Daniel Campbell announced that the luncheon speakers for November 6 would be Mrs. Marsh, vice-president of the California Federation of Women's clubs, and Rex Goodell, collector of internal revenue.

At the meeting to be held next week of the Ladies' Aid of the Central Avenue Methodist church, plans will be discussed for the bazaar which the organization is to hold in November.

AMERICA BURNS UP HALF BILLION EVERY YEAR

In spite of its enlightened populace, unequalled prosperity, an industrial leadership, our nation is paying an immense annual tribute to a powerful enemy. War is being waged against this enemy continually, but our fight is made ineffective by indifference within our own ranks. That enemy is FIRE.

Our tribute to this enemy in 1922, as shown by Bradstreet's, was $410,839,350. Uninsured and unreported losses would bring this figure to well over $500,000,000. Think of burning up half a billion dollars' worth of bank notes. And that is exactly what we are doing.

A comparison of our losses with those of our European neighbors puts us to shame. In 1913, the year before the great war, the losses of leading European nations ranged from 11 cents to 49 cents per capita. At that time our losses were $2.10 per capita—more than four times the highest European figure.

The worst of it is that in spite of much effort expended on educating the public to greater care and the use of fireproof construction, in nine years the American per capita fire loss has jumped from $2.10 to $4.75—an increase of 125 per cent.

When we compare the thickly populated nations with our own open spaces and comfortably settled cities, all excuse for our fire waste vanishes. European nations long ago learned to use fireproof building materials and in their cities inflammable dwellings are not permitted. America, too, can reduce her immense annual fire loss to negligible proportions by insisting on fireproof construction.

A woman would rather break a 15 bill than a 10-cent dish.

DR. LUSBY GIVEN SURPRISE PARTY ON HIS BIRTHDAY

On Tuesday night twenty-five friends and relatives were entertained at the home of Dr. and Mrs. C. R. Lusby of 239 North Louise street. The occasion was a surprise party, in celebration of the birthday anniversary of Dr. Lusby, and also a reunion of friends who had been young people together. The color scheme, decorations and refreshments were suggestive of the Halloween season. The refreshments included a large ice-cream birthday cake. The evening was spent in games, music, readings and reminiscences.

Those present included Mr. and Mrs. Harold Salisbury and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Melone of Long Beach, Mrs. Marian Webb of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. Roy McDonald of Anaheim, Dr. and Mrs. R. W. Lusby of San Fernando and the following from Glendale: Mr. and Mrs. Frank Weller, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Parsons, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Butterfield, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Lennox, Miss Maude Salisbury, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Erling, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Lusby, Verne Wilson and Dr. and Mrs. C. QUARTERLY MEETING OF COMBINED CLUBS FAVORED

A quarterly meeting of all luncheon clubs to discuss civic matters was looked upon with favor last night by the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce.

The Glendale Exchange club sponsors this suggestion and a letter from this club, containing the following extract, was read by Secretary E. F. Sanders: "We are confident that this kind of a meeting will assist in creating good will and a spirit of friendliness between the various clubs and business men of Glendale."

HOW TO DIVIDE UP SANDERS IS PROBLEM

How to be three places at once in the problem which is confronting E. F. Sanders, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce. T. A. CLUB WINS PRAISE FOR ITS INITIAL CONCERT

Wise choice in the selection of musical numbers presented at the regular meeting of the Tuesday Afternoon club in the auditorium of the clubhouse yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock by the Philharmonic Trio, resulted in unstinted praise of the more than 400 members in attendance. The program was preceded by a short business session in charge of Mrs. Daniel Campbell.

Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, first vice president and chairman of ways and means, announced the rummage sale which begins today at the Robinson building, corner of Elk and Central avenues. She also stated that tickets for the dinner party on October 30, for which reservations may be made for 300 people, may be secured from Mrs. Barton. There will also be tickets for a Halloween dancing party and cards at the clubhouse following the dinner. Mrs. Lorbeer, first vice president of the Los Angeles district Federation of Women's clubs, gave a short talk complimenting the club on its reputation for doing things.

Attention of the members was called to the various sections and meetings, which cover a wide range of interesting subjects. Mrs. Campbell made an appeal for donations towards the fund for the relief of families of the two fire victims. Over $161.33 was collected from the various members present for the purpose, in addition to which the club will donate $25. As a number of the members were not present, this amount will not doubt be increased considerably by further contributions.

Truths in Epigrams

AN EXCELLENT SUGGESTION

An excellent suggestion comes from a former drug addict, that dope peddlers not only be sent to prison for long terms, but that they be flogged. The young woman who presents this idea is one of the relatively few victims of the drug habit who has "come back." She and her friends believe her to have been permanently cured. It is her view that the vendor of narcotics is the greatest menace society faces. She is familiar with the type, and knows that dread of a jail sentence is no deterrent. The creatures have made money so fast that they do not care. As one of them remarked to her "I've got mine," meaning that he was rich, and ready to endure a term behind the bars.

Many times has it been remarked that the dope peddler is the most dangerous of criminals, because he is the inspiration of countless crimes. The robber on the highway, who readily slays his victim; the burglar who breaks into the home, raids a bank, or store, is given courage by dosage of his favored drug. He also acquires a desperate courage by the fierceness of his desire to obtain his regular poison. If the illicit drug traffic could be utterly crushed, with it would go a large proportion of the deeds of violence that shock every community now. The work of the police would be simplified greatly. Citizens would find organizations among themselves to fight the underworld no longer necessary.

When a crime is committed by drug addicts, a part of the guilt rests upon the individual who has catered to evil passions by supplying the motive. If the crime happens to be murder, the dope peddler is as guilty as the patron who plied the lethal weapon, and were he to get his dues, would stand on the gallows with the slayer. But the direct connection might be hard to establish. Meanwhile the use of the lash, it may be assumed, would have a reformatory effect.

A VIEW OF THE SOVIETS

Leslie M. Shaw, once secretary of the treasury, addressed the Bar association at Riverside last week. He said, among other things "Our fight is to make America unsafe for democracy."

Definitions of "democracy" are rather loose. The general opinion is that this country is a democracy. Accepting such view, the statement of Mr. Shaw would have to be set down as untenable. It might even be termed grotesque. But he was not trying to bring constitutional principles into contempt; far from it. He simply was giving a new interpretation of democracy. Holding in mind what this interpretation was, the words of Mr. Shaw lose the character of mystery, and represent sound judgment.

According to the speaker, soviet Russia is a "true democracy," being a true democracy, it is antagonistic to the form of government set up by the founders of this republic. His warning was against sovietism, was so intended, and could not fairly be otherwise construed. Nevertheless the readers of one paper were informed in large type: "Lawyers Hear Soviet Upheld." Of course they had heard nothing of the sort. They had heard the soviet roundly denounced, as a speaker pointed to the perils of permitting public opinion to be colored by the influence of sovietism.

Apparently the organs of bolshevism in the United States find great difficulty in treating their readers as intelligent and patriotic human beings.

POISON WHISKY VICTIMS

Six leading citizens of Pana, says a dispatch from that little Illinois town, are dead, and three others are in a critical condition as the result of drinking poisonous whisky believed to have been obtained at two local soft drink establishments.

People are slow to learn that however benign they may have found the product of the still in former days, there is no safety in indulging now. The old stuff used to produce a headache. If taken in sufficient quantity, it destroyed health and reason. The best that could be said of it was that some habitual users were moderate, and apparently received no harm. Others could not drink it in moderation, and for them to yield to appetite was ruin, more or less speedy in arriving.

The liquor of old days did not partake of the potency of cyanide. A social evening with a bottle on the table might mean some disaster of a minor though disagreeable nature. It did not mean that the neighborhood was to be shocked by a tragedy. The participants had more than a fair chance to escape with their lives. This is the case no longer. The man who indulges in alcoholic liquor in these days of the bootlegger does so at the direct risk of life. Perhaps the nefarious business is to end by the slaughter of so many patrons that the remainder will be scared into abstinence.

A LAND OF OPPORTUNITY

While Secretary of Labor Davis was addressing a gathering at Alhambra, he saw in the audience a man whose shoes he had blacked in the days when his energies had been devoted to "shining" in the intervals when he was not selling papers. The secretary paused upon recognizing his former patron, and told the incident. Perhaps the hearers did not recognize the full significance of it.

Mr. Davis holds a position of dignity and importance. As a member of the cabinet he is a part of the administration. His duties are performed in direct association with the President of the United States, who is his superior officer. His judgment has a marked influence, particularly on the industrial world. He also is head of one of the great fraternal organizations, noted for the beneficent spirit that actuates its charities.

Thus this American citizen of alien birth has come up from humble station. He had no special advantages. He did not depend upon a pull. He became a skilled laborer, and soon manifested executive ability. His fellow craftsmen recognized his strength of mind and character. The confidence that they reposed in him was observed outside their ranks, and President Harding called him to public station. In this he has performed ably the duties that have fallen to him, at the same time retaining an active interest in the welfare of labor and the carrying on of schemes of social betterment.

The bootblack and newsboy rises according to his intrinsic worth. He has no means of knowing what the future is to open to him. For this is the land of opportunity.

Southern California has found that advertising pays. An organization of enthusiasts undertook to spread the doctrine that this region was not exclusively a winter resort, but that climatically it had been designed as an all-the-year-round community. Some money was expended, and it has come back many-fold, so that the work is to be continued on an even larger scale.

President Obregon is said to be determined to purge Tia Juana. The effort is bound to recall the task of the individual who set about the cleaning of the Aegean stables.

Secretary of Labor Davis holds the opinion that nothing less than the death penalty is sufficient for any one who unlawfully dispenses narcotics. There are many who share the opinion.

THE DELINQUENT GIRL

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

If the study of facts, carefully collected and compiled did parents any good I would advise all parents to read a book by W. I. Thomas, "The Unadjusted Girl."

The trouble is that parents who ought to read it actually do not. A rule read nothing; and few any of them would trouble to read such a book and apply its conclusions to their own problems.

Naturally and inevitably it concerns itself mostly with girls who are troublesome domestic and social problems and girls who are actually in many cases criminal or criminally disposed.

Just the same Mr. Thomas' findings have much of interest for the best of us. He finds that at the root of all delinquency are the fundamental instincts at war with social rules and regulations. Each of us, according to this author, desire naturally four things: security, response—which comes from love—recognition and new experiences.

If girls can not get these things they become delinquent in a wild and wrong effort to secure them. Keeping children "duly humble" used to be a tradition with many parents who took pride in the fact that they "controlled" their children. Intelligent parents have given up the delusion that control and humility are of necessity partners; but the bad parent denies the child all recognition, gives no response and blocks as far as possible its opportunity to secure response elsewhere.

Security we all desire, but too much security is like an overdose of asafetida, than which few things are more deadening to the nerves. If parents would try to combine security with an opportunity for new experiences the problem of delinquency would be less acute. All things crave excitement, which in the last analysis is made up largely of new experiences or the seeking of them. That is why girls resent too close chaperonage; it cuts down rigidly the chance to exploit new acquaintances; by that I mean to talk to them, investigate them and prove their possibilities.

Of course we have to have chaperonage, but occasionally arises a wise parent who can be about and at the same time let the chaperoned juvenile enjoy enough freedom to get a few new experiences. Recognition is too often denied young people because parents fear "it will make them vain," and this denial is one cause of juvenile delinquency or at best of juvenile unhappiness and restlessness.

With these hints this little talk comes to an end. After all it is but an effort to guide puzzled parents into a line of study that may help them and their children to happiness and usefulness.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

We have a backslider in the Pie-and-Potatoes club. Just when our president had acquired those slender lines which are warranted to catch and retain the feminine he let go all holds and began to sink again into the abyss of lard. A perfectly good wardrobe for sale, suited to the needs of a lively young man whose waist is about thirty inches, along with a number of Number Fifteen silk shirts. The president is having new clothes made in which he can breathe.

"I'll never again be as fat as I used to be," he says, "but I'm going to be a little fat. I feel better that way."

The Pie-and-Potatoes club was formed to afford its rapidly fattening neophytes the advantage of solidarity in resisting the encroachments of sweet. Ten men can stifle the pangs of hunger on spinach, lettuce leaves, prunes and apples almost painlessly, if they sit about the same table and swap quip and jest as they swallow the loathsome wadding, whereas the single man engaged upon a similar menu, surrounded by gross feeders soon abandons hope. The club was eminently successful. Most of us still look hungry, but we are all thin and lithe. Most of us, too, are distinctively the better in other ways. But our president found that the effort to thwart nature was harmful.

"I didn't mind being nervous and irritable," he said. "No one minded that except those who came in contact with me. But I could not think clearly when I was half starved. I could not do my work. I've given pulchritude a fair chance. For a solid year I was a bathhouse beauty. Everything was all right except the old bean. It refused to function."

He says he will never again be as fat as he was once. There is a golden mean, he said, which comes somewhere between the santaloupe and the haricot vert model. But I doubt it. The appetite, somehow, increases with fatness. The more weight, the more steamed oysters, planked steaks and rice puddings are necessary to sustain it. After all, that makes little difference. The thing is to feel like twenty-one, whether one looks like twenty-one or not.

THE LISTENING POST

CHAPTER V

Coal, coal, coal. Southern Colorado is underlaid with a vast bed of it. And it stretches far into New Mexico. The fields in this section are of bituminous coal, which is variously known as steam, domestic and coking coal. There are dozens of coal mining camps hereabout, most of them in mountain canyons where they straddle gorges and the miners drive into the hills and bring out the black and shining lumps that supply railroads, drive the wheels of power plants, and warm homes in winter.

Coal lying beneath thousands of square miles of land, in veins six to eight feet and in many cases three veins overlying each other. Figure that out if you want to at about fifteen hundred or eighteen hundred tons to the inch to the acre. I am not good at figures, but I know it would take me a long time to shovel all that coal into a bin.

But the coal mining business is uncertain. Miners make good wages by the day, but often there are not over two or three days work in a week. It all depends on the demand for coal. A day's work missed in a coal mine is not made up. For coal goes from the mine to the car and from the car to the train and from the train to the place where it is wanted and so there is no such thing as storing excess coal at the mine.

Economic conditions of handling would not permit. So when the orders do not come in the men are laid off until the demand increases. A coal miner's income, if we are to get a fair view of it, should be reckoned by the year and not by the day. For he has to live the year even if he works only half or a third of it.

Just now some of the mines are working on the four day week, and it may be that will go down to a three day week. If there is warm weather late into the fall then the demand falls off. If the weather turns suddenly cold then the orders come running.

If railroad traffic is heavy, then there is a demand by the railroad companies for steam coal. And if railroad business slacks, then the coal demand slacks. Big orders for coal are welcomed by company and men alike, for it means a profitable activity for both. And the company dislikes to lay men off perhaps nearly as much as the men dislike to be laid off, because normal activities mean employed men, good wages and satisfied miners.

Up at Pueblo the same company has a steel plant, employing in normal times six thousand to seven thousand men. Conditions there are much the same as in the mines. Just now the rail mills and pipe mills are closed. About four thousand men are employed with others of the hundreds of products made of steel.

Close competition, the matter of transportation rates, building activity, railroad construction, all these have their bearing upon the activity of the steel works. Thus are all the industries of the country allied. A slump in building activity means a slump in steel production.

A slump in manufacturing means a slump in mining. None of us laborers are independent. Agriculture, manufacturing, steel making, mining, groceries, poetry, advertising, newspapermaking, banking, packing, tanning, weaving, all go up and down together. The only business that survives and profits by hard times perhaps is pawnbroking.

Songs of the Poets

You'll Love Me Yet—By Robert Browning

You'll love me yet!—and I can tarry
Your love's protracted growing:
June reard't that bunch of flowers you carry,
From seeds of April's sowing.

I plant a heartfelt now: some seed
At least is sure to strike,
And yield—what you'll not pluck indeed,
Not love, but may be, like.

You'll look at least on love's remains,

A grave's one violet:
Your look!—that pays a thousand pains.
What's death? You'll love me yet!

THE BETTER PATRIOTISM

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE better patriotism is the desire to make one's own country serve the world better than any other country serves the world.

We do not make progress in civilization except as our natural instincts become more rational, and are brought more in accord with our intelligence. Love does not become a civilizing agency except as it evolves from a mere animal appetite to become an ideal. Worship ceases to be an agency of cruel fanaticism and becomes a refining and humanizing power only as it cleans itself from superstition and grows into accord with intelligence. So patriotism can only cease to be a cause of wars and become the handmaid of universal peace as it rids itself from the spirit of savage struggle and becomes a competitor in service.

Patriotism is destructive when it is a sentiment directed toward making our country the ruler over others, and merely gratifying our vanity with the idea that our country shall be stronger and wealthier than others and so dictate to them.

And the patriotism that functions only in preparing one's own country to defend itself from the attacks of others is really but the desire to rule masquerading in humility.

For the only safety is in service. What is true in business is true among nations. A business house can prosper only so long as it is of service to the community; and a nation can have real prosperity only so long as it is of service to the world.

Above all nations is humanity. Unless patriotism recognizes that its place is secondary, and that the highest good of all is the welfare of the human race, patriotism becomes septic.

Some time ago General Ludendorff gave out a statement which illustrates the short sight of the reactionary mind, that type of Bourbon intelligence which learns nothing and forgets nothing. "To be prepared for war," he said, "should be the supreme law of every country, and the wealthier the country the more vital that becomes. For a country having a large part of the gold of the world concentrated there, as has America, to indulge in sentimental pacifism in the present state of the world, is nothing short of a crime against her own people and fraught with the greatest dangers, since it invites the very condition that the pacifists wish to avert."

This comes from one who was a prominent figure in the greatest failure the world has ever seen, the collapse of his own nation. That nation endeavored consistently to carry out the ideals expressed by Ludendorff, and the result is the shame, the wretchedness, the humiliation and the bankruptcy of one of the noblest and most capable races in the world.

The safest policy for any nation is to seek to make itself safe by intelligent co-operation with the other nations, and by being of indispensable service to them. The trouble is, hate is easy. Contention and competition are strong and brutal tendencies, while civilized co-operation requires vision, moral courage and a high degree of intelligence.

The better patriotism is the enthusiasm for humanity.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

MURDERERS NORTH AND SOUTH (Columbia State)

If an organized gang of floggers and man-killers in Georgia is a disgrace to the republic, what about organized gangs of secret assassins, "gunmen" who shoot for hire, in New York city, who operate from year to year and are seldom punished—except when they kill one another?

Why does not Representative Dyer of Missouri broaden the provisions of his bill so that it would provide for the trial and punishment of the "gangsters" of the great cities—and the imposition of fines on the cities in which the gangs of professional murderers operate?

Wicked as the south is, we doubt if anywhere in the southern states is to be found one organized gang of professional murderers—and they seem to be not uncommon in Chicago and New York.

In the great cities it seems that a murderer, a lawyer, a sculptor, a broker, may hire a taxi at any time.

We fear, we greatly fear, that in a southern state, a citizen practicing murder as a profession would be lynched!

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

The experiment of using busses in lieu of the familiar street car is in progress in many cities. Pasadena is trying it, and more and more Los Angeles is taking it up, particularly for traffic in outlying districts.

Busses have been operated in Long Beach for years. Results are not yet so definite as to have warranted the removal of car tracks. Opinions as to the feasibility of the plan are not all on either side. Necessarily the vehicles are large and in narrow streets have been the cause of some dissatisfaction. Opposed to this is the fact that they are mobile, and that they promise pavements unmarred by rails. They are handled with a celerity that does not cause corner congestions such as often mark the intersection of two double lines of rails.

The busses do not invariably appear in opposition to the regular transit companies, for in instances they are put on by the car company, with the idea of accommodating the public and at the same time saving expense. The public seems not ready to give its final verdict.

Food riots in Germany give an ominous aspect to a situation already far from cheering.

Hungry persons listen with scant patience to even the most generous promises.

A Chicago actress asserts that she was robbed of $10,000 worth of jewels, and as she was picked up in a deserted doorway badly beaten, there probably is more to the affair than a bid for publicity.

An American delegate speaking at the peasants' conference at Moscow, declared that there must be a fight made against American Fascism. He is said to have been there as the representative of the farmer-labor party of the United States.

Perhaps that party is being slandered. No American had any right to be at a Moscow conference as an American. It is none of the business of Moscow what course the people of the United States choose to pursue.

The California State Bar association is undertaking to bolster up the criminal laws of the state to the end that offenders may be tried promptly and punished without delay.

This is a matter in which the Bar association could be a mighty influence. A large part of the habitual delay is due to technicalities for which lawyers, sometimes of good standing, are to blame.

Sometimes a crime is so futile that there is no explanation save insanity. For example a man at Redwood City killed his uncle and robbed the house, doing all in such circumstances as made his apprehension inevitable. Then when capture was near he killed himself.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

IT IS TO LAUGH

Children laugh naturally, easy, just as they cry. Laughing is better for them than crying though, so let them do more of it.

But what shall they laugh at? One begins to be very nervous when the children begin laughing. They are not a bit discriminating and may select the wrong object for their unseemly mirth. Well, sometimes they do, but they won't if you train them to look for the right places and keep the wrong places for sober second thought.

They, of course, have the right to laugh at all funny pictures and quaint little animals; Charlie Chaplin, the monkey on a stick, the clown in the circus.

And it's right that they laugh at all silly fashions. Bustles were a legitimate source of laughter. To be sure it killed them and so served two very useful purposes, merriment to the youngsters and the removal of a blot on beauty.

Snobs can and ought to be laughed at. If Aunt Mary makes a fuss because Bob has invited his chum the plumber's son to tea, Bob has a right to laugh at her. And if John Henry turns his nose up at a flatter and refuses to ride to the dance in it, he deserves to be laughed at, and permitted to walk into the bargain.

Annoyances, little things that might make a great deal of unhappiness unless viewed from the high place of laughter, need to be laughed at. When Betty packs the luncheon basket and puts in juicy baked beans and forgets the forks and the spoons, it's better to laugh at the efforts to eat them with forked twigs than it is to fuss about the lapse of memory. Betty was excited. Next time she'll remember. It's to laugh!

Picnics are great places for laughter. It's much needed. It drives ants from the pie and takes the sugar out of the pickles. And laughter is needed for rest. Children work intensely, tie themselves into knots in their nervous expenditure of energy, and unless the tension is relieved there is bound to be a sharp reaction. The best and the safest one is hearty laughter.

The school room should always make place for it. The nervous tension in the schools is terrific and unless it is allowed relief in smiles and laughter it will take it in scowls and growls and disorder.

"We had a fine time today," grins Susan Jane at dinner. "Didn't we laugh! The teacher says to Frankie—he was down under the desk licking at a charlotte—you know what a perfect little glutton he is always—eating—well she asked him: 'What are the exports of the United States?'" And he hops and shouts out quick, "England!"

"Didn't we laugh! And the teacher laughed hardest. Some fun!"

Not much of a joke but it served. It served. Children must laugh and we must help them.

BARLING BOMBER BIGGEST PLANE IN THE WORLD

[By Associated Press]

DAYTON, O., Oct. 17.—The Barling bomber is the largest airplane. The Martin bomber, the largest airplane in use by the air service before the advent of the Barling, is a pigmy compared to it. The Barling is to make a tour of the country. The exact itinerary has not yet been announced, but the machine will be at New York about October 20.

The Barling has a wing spread of 120 feet, a height of 23 feet and an overall length of 65 feet.

The gasoline capacity is six tons, or 20,000 gallons. The oil capacity is 1350 gallons or 181 gallons.

Six Liberty engines are required to power the Barling.

The minimum crew required to operate the Barling consists of four men, but provision is made for a crew of eight.

The weight of the airplane loaded will exceed 40,000 pounds. Specifications require that not more than 5000 pounds of bombs shall be carried at one time, but were any thing so large as a 10,000 pound bomb developed, the Barling could lift it and fly for two hours.

Specifications required a flying speed of 90 miles per hour. On her initial flight the Barling accomplished 93 miles per hour without difficulty.

With 2,000 gallons of gasoline, 12 hours flight at full speed can be made. With engines throttled, or some of them cut off completely, the time of flight can be correspondingly lengthened.

A total of seven guns operated from five positions or cockpits cover the whole field in which enemy aircraft may approach. The gun defense may be augmented for day flying, in case the airplane is used for day as well as night bombing, or which it is planned.

The tail is a biplane structure, forming two planes 25 percent larger than the main wings of the DH-4 airplanes. There are four equal size rudders.

The Barling has eight wheels with three 6x12 inches, the largest ever made. Two wheels with smaller tires are on a truck further forward under the fuselage to prevent the airplane from nosing over. A radio set has been installed in the bomber.

W. H. Barling, designer of the Barling bomber speaking of the purposes of such an airplane, says: "Two elements have influenced the U. S. air service in investing the expenditures absorbed in the production of an airplane such as the Barling bomber. These may be classified as the known uses of such an airplane and the uses not yet known, owing to lack of experience with large airplanes."

"When a large airplane is spoken of, one of some 10,000 pounds, of four times the size of the Barling bomber, one which might drop two 30,000 pound bombs, is intimated. It is not impossible that such an airplane may be the logical development of the next 10 years, the Barling bomber being a step in that direction. Hence the Barling bomber is to be looked upon as a small big airplane rather than a big small one."

SWEDEN PLANS SENDING ORE TO THE RUHR

[By Associated Press]

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 17.—Sweden's industries will be affected both favorably and unfavorably by the settlement of the Ruhr conflict, according to the third quarterly statement for 1923 which has just been issued by the Royal Board of Trade.

It is pointed out that in normal times the Ruhr district took about two-thirds of the total export of Swedish iron ore. This market was closed by the French occupation, and the Swedish ore producers have been diverting their shipments to America and elsewhere, while large stocks have also been accumulated in home ports.

In the near future Germany will doubtless again become a large importer of Swedish ore.

On the other hand, Swedish machine shops, especially those manufacturing mining machinery, paper-making machinery, and motors, have been prospering because of the previously severe competition from Germany ceased with the occupation of the Ruhr. Renewed competitive offerings from Central Europe will force the prices on Swedish machinery down to the minimum margin of profit, and the hopes of being able to continue considerable exports lie in the high quality of native materials used and the excellence of workmanship.

It was the second lieutenant's unlucky day. Crossing the parade grounds he happened to meet the colonel, who snapped at him. "Is that the proper way to salute?" and left the lowest commissioned officer in the midst of his apology. At little further he met the major, who addressed him as follows: "Lieutenant, your uniform is a disgrace to the regiment. Don't appear in that condition again."

"Brace up!" shouted the latter. "Try to look like a soldier!" Even the first lieutenant encountered later in the day, too, it out on his inferior officer. "Not at time you pull a boner like you did this morning," said the first lieutenant, who was unofficially a pal of our hero's. "Till take it up with the colonel." Crushed and humiliated, the second lieutenant stood with downcast eyes. Then a snappy little Boston terrier, the property of an enlisted man, ran at him and growled. "Howd'ydahl did you know I was a second lieutenant?" he muttered.

Just Chatter

By John J. Mulligan

He was some sort of a sky or fox terrier and very cute and pert and lovely he seemed with that "come and play with me" look in his eye as he sat hitched to a tiny peg on the lawn bordering the walk. I spoke to him kindly and chuckled his chin, tickled his ear, scratched his nose and stroked his head and fussed and fooled around with him 'till I was covered with hair and he with joy. Everything went fine and dandy and we were steadfast friends until who strolled up behind me meowing as though its tiny heart would break, but a cute little kitten about as big as a pint of peanuts. Thereupon I divided my attentions and thereupon I made my bed of thorns for right there trouble started and plenty of it. I don't know whether it was a brotherly-sisterly squabble, or simply a case of jealousy, but I do know that inside of a second the air was full of flying fur and whiskers. The cat playing jockey, mounted the nose of the dog's back and trying to separate them. I tripped over his chain and fell on my nose. I picked myself up, rubbed my beak and felt foolish. Evidently the inmates of the house had seen and heard for the door opened and out came a pretty girl with a smile and whiskers. We both laughed and chatted and she remarked that Bimkins was a playful dog, and I heartily agreed with her. And though I tore my suit and cut my nose, I wasn't at all sorry for she was very sweet and pretty.

But as for dogs, however, the next time I see one with a lonely "come and play with me" look in his eye, before I do, I'm first going to look well in all directions and find out if any of his play mates are around and if they are, why he can just go chase himself or go to the howl-wo, or do anything else he darned pleases.

Our three heroes walked back to the boulevard, the only silent one amid the throng that poured through the Rue St. Honoré, as the Glens des Basbibaoucks emptied itself of its over-excited audience.

This went arm in arm, as usual; but this time Little Billee, was in the middle. He wished to feel on each side of him the warm and genial contact of his two beloved old friends. It seemed as if they had suddenly been restored to him, after five long years of separation; his heart was overflowing with affection for them, too full to speak just yet. Overflowing, indeed, with the love of love, the love of life, the love of death—the love of all that is, and ever was, and ever will be! just as in his old day.

He could have hugged them both in the open street, before the whole world; and the delight of it was that this was no dream; that there was no mistake. He was himself again at last, after five years, and wide awake; and he owed it all to Trilby!

And what did he feel for Trilby? He couldn't tell yet. It was "too vast as yet to be measured; and, alas! it was weighed with such a burden of sorrow and regret that he might well put off the thought of it a little while longer, and gather in what bliss he might, like the man whose hearing had been restored after long years; he would revel in the mere physical delight of hearing for a space, and not go out of his way as yet to listen for the bad news that was already in the air, and would come to roost quite soon enough.

Taffy and the Laird were silent also; Trilby's voice was still in their ears and hearts, her image in their eyes, and a utter bewilderment still oppressed them and kept them dumb.

It was a warm and balmy night, almost like a midsummer; and they stopped. At the first cafe they met on the boulevard de la Madeleine (commonly called the "Madelaine"), and ordered books of beer, and sat at a little table, on the pavement, the only one unoccupied; for the cafe was already crowded, the hum of lively life was great, and "la Stengall" was in every mouth.

The Laird was the first to speak. He emptied his book at a draught, and called for another, and lit a cigar, and said, "I don't believe it was Trilby, after all!" It was the first time her name had been mentioned between them that evening—and for five years!

"Good heavens!" said Taffy. "Can you doubt it?"

"Oh, yes! that was Trilby," said Little Billee.

Then the Laird proceeded to explain that, putting aside the impossibility of Trilby's ever being taught to sing in tune, and her well-remembered loathing for Sven-gall, he had narrowly scanned her face through his opera glass, and found that in spite of a likeness quite marvelous there were well-marked differences. Her face was narrower and longer, her eyes larger, and their expression not the same; then she seemed taller and stouter, and her shoulders broader and more drooping, and so forth.

But the others wouldn't hear of it, and voted him cracked, and denounced their even recognized the peculiar twang of her old speaking voice in the voice she now sang with, especially when she sang low down. And they all three fell to discussing the wonders of her performance like everybody else all round; Little Billee leading, with an eloquence and a seeming of technical musical knowledge that quite impressed them, and made them feel happy and at ease; for they were anxious for his sake about the effect this sudden and so unexpected sight of her would have upon him after all that had passed.

He seemed transcendently happy and elated—transcendently happy, in fact—and looked at them both with quite a new light in his eyes, as if all the music he had heard had trebled not only his joy in being alive, but his pleasure at being with them. Evidently he had quite outgrown his old passion for her, and that was a comfort indeed!

But Little Billee knew better. He knew that his old passion for her had all come back, and was so overwhelming and immense that he could not feel it just yet, nor yet the hideous pangs of a jealousy so consuming that it would burn up his life. He gave himself another twenty-four hours.

But he had not to wait so long. He woke up after a short, uneasy sleep that very night, to find that the flood was over him; and he realized how hopelessly, desperately, wickedly, insanely he loved this woman, who might have been his, but was now the wife of another man; a greater than he, and one to whom she owed it that she was more glorious than any other woman on earth—a queen among queens—a goddess for that was any earthly throne compared to that she established in the hearts and souls of all who were within the sight and hearing of her! beautiful, beautiful! And what must be her love for the man who had taught her and trained her, and revealed her towering genius to herself and to the world?—a man resplendent also, handsome and tall and commanding—a great artist from the crowns of his head to the sole of his feet!

And the remembrance of them—hand in hand, master and pupil, husband and wife—smiling and bowing in the face of all that splendid tumult they had called forth and could not quell, stung and tortured and maddened him so that he could not lie still, but got up and raged and rampaged up and down his hot, narrow, stuffy bedroom, and longed for his old familiar brain-disease to come back and paralyze his trouble, and be his friend, and stay with him till he died!

Where was he to fly for relief from such new memories as these, which would never cease; and the old memories, and all the glamour and grace of them that had been so suddenly called out of the grave? And how could he escape, now that he felt the sight of her face and the sound of her voice would be a craving—a daily want—like that of some poor starving outcast for warmth and meat and drink?

And little innocent, pathetic, infatigable, well-remembered sweetnesses of her changing face kept painting themselves on his retina; and incomparable tones of this new thing, her voice, her infinite voice, went ringing in his head, till he all but shrieked aloud in his agony.

And then the poisoned and delicious sweetness of those mad kisses, on lips that were for others!

And then the gossamerous physical jealousy, that miserable inheritance of all artistic sons of Adam, that plague and torment of the dramatic, plastic imagination, which can idealize so well, and yet realize, alas! so keenly. After three or four hours spent like this, he could stand it no longer; madness was lying his way. So he hurried on a garment, and went and knocked at Taffy's door.

"Good God! what's the matter with you?" exclaimed the good Taffy, as Little Billee tumbled into his room, calling out:

"Oh, Taffy, Taffy, I've g-g-gone mad, I think! And then, shivering all over, and stammering incoherently, he tried to tell his friend what was the matter with him, with great simplicity.

Taffy, in much alarm, slipped on his trousers and made Little Billee get into his bed, and sat by his side holding his hand. He was greatly perplexed, fearing the recurrence of another attack like that of five years back. He didn't dare leave him for an instant to wake the Laird and send for a doctor.

Suddenly Little Billee buried his face in the pillow and began to sob, and some faintly told Taffy this was the best thing that could happen. The boy had always been a deeply strung, emotional, over-excitable, over-sensitive, and quite uncontrolled mammy's darling, a cry-baby sort of chap, who had never been to school. It was all a part of his genius, and also a part of his charm. It would do him good once more to have a good blub after five years! After a while Little Billee grew quieter, and then suddenly he said: "What a miserable ass you must think me, what an unmanly duffer!"

"Why, for going on in this idiotic way. I really couldn't help it. I went mad, I tell you. I've been walking up and down my room all night, till everything seemed to go round."

"So have I!"

"You? What for?"

"The very same reason."

"What!"

"I was just as fond of Trilby as you were. Only she happened to prefer you."

And in a minute or two it is all over, like the lovely bouquet of fireworks at the end of the show, and she lets what remains of it die out and away like the after-glow of fading Bengal fires—her voice receding into the distance—coming back to you like an echo from all round, from anywhere you please—quite soft—hardly more than a breath; but such a breath! Then one last chromatically ascending rocket, pianissimo, up to B in alt, and then darkness and silence!

And after a little pause the many-headed rises as one, and waves its hats and sticks and handkerchiefs, and stamps and shouts. . . . "Vive la Svengalli! Vive la Svengalli!"

Svengalli steps on to the platform by his wife's side and kisses her hand; and they both bow themselves backward through the curtains, which fall, to rise again and again on this astounding pair!

Such was la Svengalli's debut in Paris.

It had lasted little over an hour, one quarter of which, at least, had been spent in plaudits and courtesies!

Our three heroes walked back to the boulevard, the only silent one amid the throng that poured through the Rue St. Honoré, as the Glens des Basbibaoucks emptied itself of its over-excited audience.

This went arm in arm, as usual; but this time Little Billee, was in the middle. He wished to feel on each side of him the warm and genial contact of his two beloved old friends. It seemed as if they had suddenly been restored to him, after five long years of separation; his heart was overflowing with affection for them, too full to speak just yet. Overflowing, indeed, with the love of love, the love of life, the love of death—the love of all that is, and ever was, and ever will be! just as in his old day.

He could have hugged them both in the open street, before the whole world; and the delight of it was that this was no dream; that there was no mistake. He was himself again at last, after five years, and wide awake; and he owed it all to Trilby!

And what did he feel for Trilby? He couldn't tell yet. It was "too vast as yet to be measured; and, alas! it was weighed with such a burden of sorrow and regret that he might well put off the thought of it a little while longer, and gather in what bliss he might, like the man whose hearing had been restored after long years; he would revel in the mere physical delight of hearing for a space, and not go out of his way as yet to listen for the bad news that was already in the air, and would come to roost quite soon enough.

Taffy and the Laird were silent also; Trilby's voice was still in their ears and hearts, her image in their eyes, and a utter bewilderment still oppressed them and kept them dumb.

It was a warm and balmy night, almost like a midsummer; and they stopped. At the first cafe they met on the boulevard de la Madeleine (commonly called the "Madelaine"), and ordered books of beer, and sat at a little table, on the pavement, the only one unoccupied; for the cafe was already crowded, the hum of lively life was great, and "la Stengall" was in every mouth.

The Laird was the first to speak. He emptied his book at a draught, and called for another, and lit a cigar, and said, "I don't believe it was Trilby, after all!" It was the first time her name had been mentioned between them that evening—and for five years!

"Good heavens!" said Taffy. "Can you doubt it?"

"Oh, yes! that was Trilby," said Little Billee.

Then the Laird proceeded to explain that, putting aside the impossibility of Trilby's ever being taught to sing in tune, and her well-remembered loathing for Sven-gall, he had narrowly scanned her face through his opera glass, and found that in spite of a likeness quite marvelous there were well-marked differences. Her face was narrower and longer, her eyes larger, and their expression not the same; then she seemed taller and stouter, and her shoulders broader and more drooping, and so forth.

But the others wouldn't hear of it, and voted him cracked, and denounced their even recognized the peculiar twang of her old speaking voice in the voice she now sang with, especially when she sang low down. And they all three fell to discussing the wonders of her performance like everybody else all round; Little Billee leading, with an eloquence and a seeming of technical musical knowledge that quite impressed them, and made them feel happy and at ease; for they were anxious for his sake about the effect this sudden and so unexpected sight of her would have upon him after all that had passed.

"The very same reason."

"What!"

"I was just as fond of Trilby as you were. Only she happened to prefer you."

"What!" cried Little Billee again. "You were fond of Trilby?"

"I believe you, my boy!"

"In love with her?"

"I believe you, my boy!"

"She never knew it, then?"

"Oh, yes, she did."

"She never told me, then?"

"Didn't she? That's like her. I told her, at all events. I asked her to marry me."

"Well—I am damned! When?"

"That day we took her to Meudon, with Jeannot, and dined at the Garde Champetre's, and she danced the cancan with Sandy."

"Well—I am— And she refused you?"

"Apparently so."

"Well, I— Why on earth did she refuse you?"

"Oh, I suppose she'd already begun to fancy you, my friend. If you en a toujours au autre!"

"Fancy me—prefer me—to you?"

"Well, yes. It does seem odd of her, old fellow? But there's no accounting for tastes, you know. She's built on such an ample scale herself, I suppose, that she likes little un—contrast, you see. She's very maternal, I think. Besides, you're a smart little chap; and you ain't half bad; and you've got brains and talent, and lots of cheek, and all that. I'm rather a ponderous kind of party."

"Well—I am damned!"

"C'est comme ça! I took it lying down, you see."

"Does the Laird know?"

"No; and I don't want him to—nor anybody else."

"Taffy, what a regular downright old tramp you are!"

"Glad you think so; anyhow, we're both in the same boat, and we've got to make the best of it. She's another man's wife, and probably she's very fond of him. I'm sure she ought to be, cad as he is, after all he's done for her. So there's an end of it."

"Ah! there'll never be an end of it for me—never—never—oh, never, my God! She would have married me but for my mother's meddling, and that stupid old ass, my uncle. What a wile! Think of all she must have in her heart and brain, only to sing like that! And, O Lord! how beautiful she is—a goddess! Oh, the brow and cheek and chin, and the way her head's put on! did you ever see anything like it! Oh, if only I hadn't written and told my mother I was going to marry her! why, we should have been man and wife for five years by this time—living at Bar-bizon—painting away like mad!"

"Oh, what a heavenly life! Oh, curse all officious meddling with other people's affairs! Oh! oh! . . ."

"There you go again! What's the good? and where do I come in, my friend? I should have been no better off, old fellow—worse than ever, I think."

Then there was a long silence. At length Little Billee said:

"Taffy, I can't tell you what a trump you are. All I've ever thought of you—and God knows that's enough—will be nothing to what I shall always think of you after this."

"All right, old chap."

"And now I think I'm all right again, for a time—and I shall cut back to bed. Good-night! Thanks more than I can ever express!"

And Little Billee, restored to his balance, cut back to his own bed just as the day was breaking.

PART SEVENTH

Next morning our three friends lay late abed, and breakfasted in their rooms.

They had all three passed "white nights"—even the Laird, who had tossed about and pressed a sleepless pillow till dawn, so excited had he been by the wonder of Trilby's reincarnation, so perplexed by his own doubts as to whether it was really Trilby or not.

And certain haunting tones of her voice, that voice so cruelly sweet (which clove the stillness with a clang so utterly new, so strangely heart-piercing and seductive, that the desire to hear it once more became nostalgic—almost an ache!), certain bits and bars and phrases of the music she had sung, unappealable felicities and facilities of execution: sudden exotic warmth, fragrances, tendernesses, graces, depths, and breadths; quick changes from grave to gay, from rough to smooth, from great metallic brazen clangors to soft golden suavities; all the varied modes of sound we try so vainly to borrow from vocal nature by means of wind and reed and string—all this new "Trilbiness" kept echoing in his brain all night (for he was of a nature deeply musical), and sleep had been impossible to him.

"As when we dwell upon a word we know, Repeating, till the word we know so well, Becomes a wonder, and we know not why."

So dwelt the Laird upon the powerful tune "Ben Bolt," which kept singing itself over and over again in his tired consciousness, and maddened him with novel, strange, unacknowledged, unsuspected beauties such as he had never dreamed of in any earthly music.

How a Single Industry Spreads Prosperity

A most significant fact about an industry is the large number of people who benefit from it.

Take the cement industry, as an example:

The mills used 9,000,000 tons of coal last year. This meant 9,000 coal miners steadily employed—their families, numbering not less than 25,000, maintained—and along with them tradesmen

SIX RECORDS ARE BROKEN IN THIS YEAR'S SERIES

Babe Ruth and Casey Stengel Break World Series Records

NEW YORK, Oct. 17. — Six world series home run records were broken and two more were equalled in the spectacular battle between the New York Giants and Yankees while several other hitting records were tumbled.

Casey Stengel's feat of supplying two winning home runs in one series bettered the mark of Frank Baker, who won two games for the old Athletics with circuit wallop, but in separate series, 1911 and 1913.

Three records fell to Ruth of the Yankees. Two homers in a single game has been accomplished three times before — by Pat Dougherty, Harry Hooper and Benny Kauff — but in none of these cases did the wallops come in successive innings, as did Ruth's.

The Yankees star bagged his in the fourth and fifth inning of the second game.

Babe's third homer of the series, in the sixth game, broke the record of two first set by Dougherty in 1901, and equalled by several others, including Stengel this year. Combining this trio with the one he made in the 1921 series, Ruth tops the best previous mark for total series, three, held jointly by Baker and Larry Gardner of Cleveland.

Two club records were made. The total of ten home runs for the contending teams is a new mark, while the rival teams, with five each, share the honor of shattering the former high record of three, set by the Philadelphia Athletics in 1911 and duplicated by the Boston Red Sox in 1915.

The record of four home runs by both teams in a single game, set by the Boston Red Sox and Philadelphia Nationals in 1915, was duplicated in the second contest when Ruth's pair was added to blows by Irish Meusel and Ward. The Yankees, with three of this quartet, also tied the club record for a single game, set by the Boston Red Sox in 1915.

Joe Dugan, who bagged four hits in the fifth game, and Ross Young, who collected a quartet of singles in the fourth game, also tied the record for most hits in a single game, first set by Tommy Leach of Pittsburgh in 1903 and since duplicated by nine others.

Whitney Witt added his name to the list of batting heroes with a record of three successive hits, including a brace of doubles in as many consecutive innings in the fourth game.

JIM BYRD KNOCKS OUT M'LAUGHLIN IN SECOND ROUND WITH LEFT HOOK

First Bouts of Glendale Athletic Club Win Approval of Hundreds of Fans Who Thronged the Arena to View the Fight

By FRANCIS W. READ

Jim Byrd, Glendale heavyweight, knocked out Andy McLaughlin, Burbank fighter, in the second round of their scheduled battle last night. A murderous left hook did the job, sending McLaughlin to the floor with a resounding crash. It was some minutes afterward before he regained consciousness.

When the fighters left their corners they started slugging, falling several times into clinches. Then Byrd landed a blow that sent McLaughlin to his knees. He slipped, went through the ropes, and remained down for a count of nine. Again they fell into the clinches, and again Byrd sent his opponent down for the count of nine. They resumed slugging and were in a clinch when the round ended.

The second round opened with hard blows by both fighters. Byrd had the advantage in a very few seconds, and before McLaughlin was able to find himself sent home the blow that finished the Burbank fighter.

Boxing fans of this city were given a wonderful exhibition of the fist art at the first Glendale Athletic club bouts, staged last night at Hahn's auditorium, 109 North Brand. The fight between Jim Byrd and Andy McLaughlin, which was the main event, was a knockout in the second round, was the attraction of the evening.

Five preliminary bouts, all of them good scraps, were pulled off, making one of the best cards ever seen hereabouts. In the curtain raiser, Young Salos knocked out Kid Caruso in the second round. Payo and Carr, 115 pounders, battled four rounds to a draw. They put up a great scrap. Reese and Racer entered the ring next, Racer scoring a knockout in less than two minutes. Next came a four-round battle between two midweight scrappers, Johnny Dundee the Second and Benny Leonard, junior, little shavers who together could not have weighed more than eighty pounds. They put a game fight and battled four rounds to a draw.

Wickens and Williams were next on the card. They fought a real battle, but Dickson was too much for his opponent and got the decision after four rounds.

At this point in the proceedings, Jim Jeffries, former heavyweight champion of the world, was introduced. Jeffries refereed the next

AUTO CLUB GIVES DUCK AND QUAIL HUNTERS ADVICE

With the opening of quail season coming and "sports" widely looking for ducks all over the country, motorists are advised that the Auto Club of Southern California has some interesting outing news for them.

Reports brought in by auto investigators say that ducks have not yet migrated from the north and just last week thousands of them were seen at Klamath and Clear lakes on the California border, also at Agency marsh, where the birds have been nesting. It is expected that these points will freeze over about November 1, driving the birds south into the southern counties of California.

Although duck hunting for the unattached hunter does not look very bright at the present time, things will begin to pick up as soon as the migration starts in. Good shooting has been had in the Imperial valley near Calipatria, but it has slowed up again, and sporting interest has transferred itself to the many lakes in San Diego county where "drive days" are held on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Quail hunting gets harder and harder every season. It is pointed out. It is necessary for motorists to go farther afield this year than ever before, says the auto club. Riverside county has several likely places in the vicinity of Hemet, Aguanga and Diamond valley. This is also true of San Luis Obispo county around Atascadero, Semler, Cayucos, and San Miguel. Also in the hills about San Diego.

WHITE SOX TAKE CHICAGO SERIES FROM THE CUBS

[By Associated Press]

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—The White Sox again are Chicago city champions. Beating the National League Cubs, 4 to 3, in ten innings yesterday, the Americans won the series, four games to two. Two fumbles and a wild throw by George Grant gave the Sox championship.

It was the eighth city championship the Sox have won from the Cubs.

FORMER BRANCH HURLER SIGNED BY SACRAMENTO

Joe Bohme, former Southern Branch twirler, has signed up with the Sacramento club of the Pacific Coast league, according to recent reports.

Charlie Pick, manager of the club, was well pleased with the form displayed by Bohme in a workout last Sunday and tendered him a contract. Joe was a member of the Branch nine for the two past years.

TROJAN FROSH HOOK UP WITH PREPS FRIDAY

Coach Leo Calland's University of Southern California freshmen climb out of the preliminary class to main-event caliber Friday afternoon when they tackle the Modesto Junior College eleven on Bovard field.

In their previous games the Trojan peagreeners have been provided the preliminary thrills, but in their remaining three games they hog the limelight as they do not appear with the U. S. C. varsity again this year.

Calland expects a tough tussle for his charges Friday as the Modesto Junior College squad last week held the powerful Stanford frosh to a 7 to 0 score. Kenneth Townsend, former Trojan grid star, is coaching the Modesto eleven, so his team will probably be well versed in the U. S. C. system of grid play.

The Trojan babes are expected to show their best form to date against the Modesto collegians, for the following week they tackle the Stanford frosh in the Coliseum in their first "big game." On November 3 Calland's crew hooks up with the California yearling eleven at Berkeley in their closing game of the year.

CHARLES PADDOCK TO RUN TOMORROW IN LEGION MEET

BERKELEY, Oct. 17.—Charles Paddock, champion sprinter, and Jole Ray, titleholding miler, are to be entries in the Olympiad to be staged by the American Legion at California field here tomorrow.

Ray will find hot competition in such stars as George T. Bertus of Buffalo, who defeated him in the mile event last year; Earl Bierbaum of the Olympic club, Bill Kerr of Stanford, and others.

Morris Kirksey of Stanford is an entrant in the 100 and 220-yard events and "Brick" Muller, all-American football end, will hurl the discus.

SPORT-O-GRAMS

STANFORD PLAYS OCCIDENTAL SATURDAY

Stanford comes south this Saturday to play the Occidental eleven at the Los Angeles Coliseum. As near as we can see there will be some struggle when the two teams meet on the gridiron. Occidental has a real bunch of fighters. There is no doubt that the Tigers can play football. They surely showed the stuff Saturday when they buried the Redlands Bulldogs under a 33 to 0 score. Ridderhoff, Ebers, Argue and the rest of the gang make the Tigers one of the most formidable teams in the south. It would be interesting to see how they would stack up against U. S. C. this year.

Stanford is certainly a team to be feared. From the way the Cardinals licked Santa Clara Saturday it appears that they have a real bunch of footballers up at Palo Alto. Our enthusiastic correspondent up at Stanford writes that the Cards are going to beat U. S. C. this year and give Cal a hard scrap. He informs us that we have been overlooking the strength of the Stanford eleven this year. Perhaps we have.

What have we had to really go by until recently? At first it was thought that the Cards would count for little or nothing this year. They have now proved that they will be strong contenders for the Pacific Coast conference tag. It is our duty, says the above mentioned Stanford correspondent, to prepare Southern California for the shock it will receive on October 27, the day of the Card-U. S. C. game. They have now proved that they will be strong contenders for the Pacific Coast conference tag. It is our duty, says the above mentioned Stanford correspondent, to prepare Southern California for the shock it will receive on October 27, the day of the Card-U. S. C. game.

There is no doubt that when Occidental and Stanford meet this Saturday there will be a real scrap.

GLENDALE HIGH HAS A REAL TEAM

Reports from various places seem to indicate that Glendale High is the most feared team in the Central League this year. The Red and Black gridgers have shown sufficient stuff to prove that they play real football. Even the most cynical of scribes admits in a Los Angeles paper of being impressed with the way the Dynamiters cleaned up on Franklin High, champions of the City League last year, and smothered Santa Barbara under a 65 to 0 score. It looks like Glendale has a mighty good chance of winning the pennant for the 1923 season. To date the locals have not lost a game and have defeated Fillmore, Oxnard, Franklin, Hollywood and Santa Barbara in practice games to perfect their style of play.

THE ONLY SCORE MADE AGAINST THEM

was the safety made by Franklin Friday they travel to South Pasadena where they will take on the Tigers in the first Central League game.

The Glendale lightweight footballers have shown their stuff in the pre-season games also, and promise to repeat their sensational performance of last year, in spite of the fact that only four or five of last year's veterans are back, some having graduated and others being on the heavyweight squad. The first lightweight game of the Central League season will be staged Thursday afternoon on the local field with South Pasadena.

RUTH PARTS WITH SOME OF WORLD'S SERIES WINNINGS

NEW YORK, Oct. 17. — Babe Ruth today took out a $50,000 life insurance policy with his greatest American League rival for batting honors, Harry Heilmann of the Detroit Tigers, who is an insurance agent during the off season.

Heilmann witnessed the triumph of the Yankees in the last game of the world's series with the Giants and talked business with the Babe today soon after the big slugger received his part of the winner's share in the series. The policy is made out in favor of Mrs. Ruth and baby Dorothy.

Heilmann and Ruth are the keenest of rivals on the diamond, the former winning out by a narrow margin this year in the race for hitting supremacy, but also warm friends.

CUBS TO MEET LOYOLA ELEVEN THIS SATURDAY

Loyola College, with aspirations high for a place in the Southern California Conference in the near future, will endeavor to display a few strong reasons for having aspirations to the world at large when they tangle with Coach Jimmie Cline's football squad next Saturday afternoon on Moore Field. To date the Sixteenth Streeters have walloped Poly high by the score of 62 to 0, and gone down to defeat to the All-Star U. S. C. Freshman team by a 15 to 0 score.

Southern Branch is a hard hitting team. The Cubs nosed out San Diego State last Saturday by a 12 to 0 score. They are showing up in good style, although they need the two weeks remaining before their first conference game to perfect their style of play.

CALTECH FAVORED TO WALLOP THE POMONA TEAM

Engineers and Sagehens Will Furnish Only Conference Tilt Saturday

Whether the green Sagehens of Pomona College have grown wings strong enough to enter into the battle for the 1923 conference championship will be partially decided Saturday afternoon at the Tournament of Roses field in Pasadena when Coach Eugene Nixon's 1922 champs tackle the California Tech Beavers. The Claremont eleven has a line almost as green as a cucumber, and just what Coaches Nixon and Deedy Teath have done with this forward wall since the U. S. C. tilt remains to be seen. If the blue and white forwards improve steadily throughout the season Pomona is to be wholesomely feared by other conference eleven.

All the odds favor Caltech Saturday. The Beavers made a better showing against U. S. C. than most veterans than the Sagehens, outweigh the Pomona line by ten pounds, and will be playing on their own lot. Add to this the fact that they will probably be ready to tear things inside out after the Whittier defeat of last week and you have rather a hard situation for Mr. Nixon and company to buck against.

Caltech's line is better than Pomona's and the Sagehen backfield has the edge on the Beavers. The question of victory hinges on the amount of superiority the Tech line is able to maintain over the Claremonters. Coach Nixon has only two veterans, Captain Mooney and Les Baynham, on his forward wall, while Moyle, Beck, Seymour and Brunner compose the Beaver vets on the line. Alderman, a tackle last season, is now playing full. Groat, Goldsmith, and Stump have other backs, were all regulars last year. Pomona has one seasoned man in the backfield, Roland Clark, a halfback. Merritt, Bell and McCulley are all playing their first year on the varsity. However, these three chaps are all mighty classy performers and will stack up a trifle ahead of the Engineers.

EAGLE ROCK NEWS

LOOTED REGISTER IS FOUND IN
EAGLE ROCKBurglars Rob Pasadena
Oil Station Night of Big Fire

Investigation of the return of a looted cash register found at the corner of Hill and Colorado, by S. L. McArthur, 365 South Fair Oaks, Pasadena, yesterday, resulted in finding that the register was the property of the Golden Seal Service station located at Peoria and Colorado, Pasadena.

Mr. McArthur was driving to Eagle Rock from Pasadena, when he espied the cash register in the grass by the side of the road. He immediately brought it to the Eagle Rock police station.

The Pasadena police department was notified, and reported that a cash register, following the description of the stolen register, had been found at the Golden Seal Service station, along with four tires and two Pyrene fire extinguishers Saturday night, when every available bit of equipment was being rushed to the scene of the fire.

The fact that the cash register had been taken from the extinguishers, however, led to the belief that the burglars were not fire fighters. The cash register was originally the property of Wm. M. Hafon, 621 North Oak Oaks, Pasadena, according to the sales records of the National Cash Register company.

The register was badly mutilated, through the thieves' endeavors to open it. The quest for the looters was unsuccessful, on the part of Pasadena police, who did not know of the loss until Sunday morning.

NAB DUNCAN FOR THE POSSESSION OF LIQUOR

William M. Duncan, well-known local barber, was arrested early yesterday afternoon by Federal Officer Schubert, following a raid on his business location when a gallon of intoxicating liquor was found and confiscated. Mr. Duncan is also booked for speeding in Burbank, and is due to appear in court in that city to answer to the charge, on October 23.

The raid on Mr. Duncan's place of business here, on North Central, was made while Mr. Duncan was shaving a customer, the officer making a search of the premises. Mr. Duncan was permitted to complete the job and was then taken to the Los Angeles police station and placed under $500 bail. He was allowed to stop at his residence on Avenue 57 before going with the officers. He is due to answer in the Los Angeles police court some time today.

Mr. Duncan is said to have a host of friends in Eagle Rock and vicinity, and is known to many of them as "Murphy." When questioned by the officer, he denied having at any time sold liquor.

WOMEN TO WAGE
CLEAN UP WAR
IN EAGLE ROCK

"No rubbish in sight"—in other words, Eagle Rock is to become as clean as a whistle.

The women of the city have decided it, and dirt, papers, weeds, old dead trees, and a lot of other unnecessary things had better look out. The town civic committee, headed by Mrs. C. A. Kirksey, of the Women's Twentieth Century club, is at the head of the movement.

Mrs. Kirksey has reason to be proud of at least one trait, which has shown itself very prominently in her activities during the past, and that is the ability to "stick to a thing until it's done." She has come out victor in more than one undertaking, where the people on the side lines declared the cause hopeless, and now that the attempts of many have failed to bring forth the desired effects of cleanliness in the city beautiful, Mrs. Kirksey is mustering her forces of women and is going after things—"tooth and nail."

The recent fire has added impetus to the cause. Before any more trouble starts, the ounce of prevention is to be applied. The slogan is "a clean and sanitary city," and invariably it will be found that scarcity of fires follows such a slogan, it carried out to the letter.

A determined group of women met at the home of Mrs. Kirksey on Hill avenue and decided a few things. Among them, was the fact that there must be a "real sincere co-operation and unity of all clubs, civic organizations, and schools" to pull together if the people of Eagle Rock are to cause the beautification of the city.

The first move is to clean every lot. That has been heard before, by ears that hear, and respond, by ears that hear and do not respond, and ears that do not hear. This time that is to be heard—and every ear must respond. Every parkway is to be cleaned also. It is a matter of complying with the city ordinance, section 2, which says: "It shall be the duty of every owner or agent of owner to remove from lots or parcels of land all grass, weeds, dead trees, rubbish, and waste materials of all kinds."

"If said owner or agent fails to remove waste, it shall be the duty of the bureau of fire prevention to furnish the board of public works a description of lots. It shall be the duty of this board to cause the removal of all vegetation and waste therefrom and assess each lot the cost of removal."

"All this can be done," stated Mrs. Kirksey. "That is, with the help of every man, woman, boy and girl in this beautiful little city, among the hills. We will ask the Boy Scouts and the boys at the schools to aid in the clean-up. There is nothing too good for Eagle Rock, and let's have pride enough to be the cleanest city around Los Angeles."

VERSE

Written by Your Neighbor

BY YOUR NEIGHBOR
You have heard people tell a never ending story. If you haven't, you are fortunate, for there are people who have bounteous ability to ramble on and on through a canyon of phrases, wading a running stream of sentences, that go on and on to the boundless paragraph.

With the writer of this poem, such a meeting was—well, read the poem. He tells about it here.

THE EVERLASTING STORY
Would you like to hear a story that was told me by a friend?
It neither had a beginning nor did it have an end;
It began so very funny that I thought the first was last,
It seemed when in the middle that the subject was quite vast.

It commenced upon a subject that I thought would never stop.
From the starting point I listened 'till I thought I'd almost drop;
It lasted so very long I began to yawn,
The time went by so very slow all night, 'till early dawn.

The commencement of this story was to me so awful dry.
My nerves began to twitch and jerk I thought I'd nearly die;
The yarn began to drail and drag it put me in a fret,
I never shall forget that tale my ears are ringing yet.

Now will you ever stop, I thought he'd kindly condescend,
I felt I'd like to pinch or punch him as a hint for him to end;
His tongue wagged on the same old grind, and thrashed like a machine;
It ailed and ailed and jawed and sawed the worst I've ever seen.

I went to sleep, I know no more, his tongue was lashing yet;
And when at last I realized, my hi, O how I sweat,
I can hear that endless story though I'm not quite all serene,
I'm might glad it's over now, it was a nightmare dream.

EAGLE ROCK BOY IS THIRD IN
CONTESTLe Roy Tepe Wins Bicycle
in Huge Press Circulation
Contest

Le Roy Tepe of 2339 Sycamore finished third in the gigantic contest staged by the Glendale Press and Eagle Rock Press circulation departments.

Master Tepe is especially to be congratulated, due to the fact that he entered the contest three weeks after the contest started, and was competing against a very well-out-fitted Glendale. However, he secured subscriptions here sufficient in number to place him third on the list, and entitle him to possession of a splendid $50 bicycle.

Incidentally, the Eagle Rock Press, through Tepe, nosed the Burbank Press off the map, although Burbank enjoys a population larger than that of Eagle Rock by more than 2000. Tepe wants to thank all subscribers and friends who made it possible for him to win the bicycle.

CHEVROLET SEDAN
TO BE GIVEN AWAY HERE

Instead of the customary bazaar given in December by the St. Dominic's church, for the purpose of raising church funds, it has been decided to dispose of a new 1924 Chevrolet sedan. The gentlemen of the Holy Name Confraternity held an enthusiastic meeting at the parochial residence, 2002 East Myrtle avenue, Monday evening to complete the plans for disposing of the tickets.

Sets of 100 tickets in sealed envelopes ranging in price from one cent to one dollar were distributed to the captains and their sides for immediate sale. Tickets may also be had at the rectory and at the McLean Motor company where this beautiful machine is on display.

FIRST BIRTHDAY
FOR DOUGLAS MARTIN

"It's great to be a year old," says little Douglas Martin, who entertained a number of grownups and two cousins yesterday afternoon at his home, 4810 Central avenue. The table was centered with a snowy white coconut cake featuring one pink candle. A little confusion was caused when the young host rapturously dived a playful hand into a cup of hot coffee, but as the burn was not serious, and the coffee was cleared from the landscape, everything was lovely after that. Those present were Mrs. E. C. Martin, proud mother; Mrs. Johanna Swenson, the grandmother; Mrs. A. J. Frederickson and son Robert, Mrs. J. A. Swenson and daughter Caroline, and Miss Jennie Swenson, sister to Mrs. Martin.

DINNER ON THURSDAY
Another of those "ludicrous" chicken dinners for which the Methodist Ladies' Aid society is becoming famous, is to be served at the Methodist church annex, Castle and Colorado street, Thursday, October 18, at noon. Business people are especially invited to a taste of home-cooking down town. The proceeds go toward the new church building which is being planned.

Dyed Laces for Silk Lingerie
Dyed laces are very much used this season and now one is able to buy the narrow valenciennes edgings as well as the wider laces in many different colors. These laces could be used to advantage on silk lingerie in the pastel shades.

"I have secured a long lease on this building," said Mr. Goldsmith this morning, "and I intend to give Glendale one of the best men's furnishing stores in Southern California. I will sell at prices that will be a good saving to the men of Glendale, and for the benefit of the working men of the city we intend to remain open evenings until 9 o'clock. The motto of this establishment is, 'The store that makes your dollars have more sense.'"

Foley's Friendly Fancies

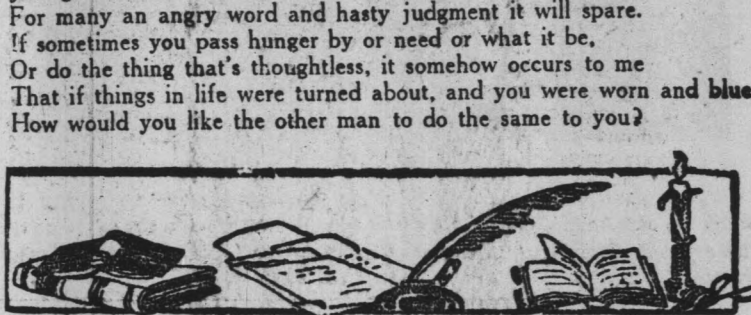

THE GORED OX

When you're cross and gruff and crusty, and the world is looking sour,
When the troubles seem to pile up and get bigger every hour,
When you snap and bark and scold at all your family and friends,
And every imp of evil all the day of you attends;
Then it's time to curb your temper and restrain the words you say,
And remember, though you mean it not, it's not the proper way,
And when at times you do it, as sometimes we all may do,
I wonder how you'd like the other man to speak to you.

When I hear a hasty judgment from the lips of you declared,
When I hear your rash opinions hotly given, lightly aired,
When you would berate the sinner, and make much of what was wrong
In your loudly-voiced opinion, and you shout it loud and long,
Then I wonder how you'd like it, if you were the other man
If somebody spoke as you do, and as any critic can.
And if you were on your trial, tell me honestly and true,
How would you like the Judge of All to rise and speak to you?

There is an old, old saying, that I'd print here underscored:
"It makes a lot of difference whose oxen may be gored."
Just get that in the mind of you and keep it firmly there,
For many an angry word and hasty judgment it will spare.
If sometimes you pass hunger by or need or what it be,
Or do the thing that's thoughtless, it somehow occurs to me
That if things in life were turned about, and you were worn and blue,
How would you like the other man to do the same to you?

The most sensational, thrilling fire picture ever made—a story of Life as it is lived in boulevards and alleys of a great city. AT THE THEATRES

"DOUG" FAILED TO INSPIRE EXTRA WITH CHIVALRY

Douglas Fairbanks tried hard to instill the true spirit of chivalry within the very souls of the 1500 supernumeraries he engaged to serve as the "atmosphere" in his notable production of "Douglas Fairbanks in Robin Hood," which has its last showings today at the Glendale Theater. Generally speaking, he succeeded admirably, but there were exceptions.

In order to create the proper environment he directed that every "extra" be impressed with the meaning of gallantry and that they each act and talk gallantly. There was one burly chap far too modernized by his long contact with the vernacular of the street to be susceptible to so much exalted conduct and conversation.

On one occasion he had grown impatient because he was too near the end of the line awaiting wardrobe for the day's work. When he finally did get up to the wardrobe man, as luck would have it, he was not handed a robe which was designed to be worn with tights. Upon realizing that he might have to return to the end of the line again in order to get a complete outfit, his ire was aroused.

"Hey!" he yelled at the wardrobe man. "Hey, you glad-rag juggler! Where's my knight-shirt?"

Verily, the spell of the spirit of chivalry had not wielded any influence.

Kels was generally believed to have been wealthy but several important deals went wrong and it is alleged that he allowed the hobo's body to be buried by his family and friends as that of "Alex Kels" so his wife could collect life insurance. RURAL MOTHERS DISCUSSED BY HEALTH ASSN.

DETROIT, Oct. 17. — Rural mothers were the subject of a discussion before the first annual meeting of the American Child Health association, in session here today, and Dr. Everett C. Hartley, director of the Division of Child Hygiene, Minnesota State Department of Health, offered to the more than six hundred delegates suggestions for the stimulation of interest of such parents in the health of their children.

"The endless repetition of the saying that good health is valuable has robbed the truth of its vitality," Dr. Hartley said. "It is too often merely a phrase whose parrot-like recurrence takes from it every quality of conviction and inspiration with which it is naturally so richly endowed."

There are several consequences of good health conspicuous enough to interest the rural mother, Dr. Hartley declared. His duties in Minnesota are confined chiefly to the rural district and he is recognized as an authority on his phase of child health activity. These consequences he enumerated as follows:

"1. Good Health improves the appearance of her children.

"2. The usefulness of her children is increased and their disposition is improved. Generally speaking, the tired child, or the irritable, whining or lazy child is not functioning properly. Healthy children are active, busy and full of curiosity."

"3. Healthy children are alert and bright. Their school work is better than that of a faulty child, largely because their native intelligence can work unhindered by physical faults.

"4. Unhealthy or weak children are a source of worry to their mothers. The future of such children also is a problem and increases the concern which their present condition arouses. Forever unexpressed, the pride of a mother in a weak and unhealthy child must suffer and can never compare with that which she must feel in a strong, alert and vigorous child."

"5. A healthy child is much cheaper than an unhealthy one. There not only is the direct saving in doctor's fees but there is the saving in the time and additional work to both the mother and the father."

Another distinct advantage in interesting rural mothers in the health of their children, Dr. Hartley asserted, is found in the fact that such interest increases her concern in the health of the community.

Eleven agencies are assisting health authorities in the dissemination of this propaganda among rural mothers, the speaker said. These are the Parent-Teacher associations, the Federated Women's Clubs, the League of Women Voters, the Farm Bureau, the Church Clubs, the State Advisory Board in Maternity and Infancy and the County Administrative Boards, the Ladies' Aid Societies, the W. C. T. U., the medical profession, the nursing profession and the State University Medical School and Extension Division.

opens. This has the most stupendous fire scene in the films, showing the destruction of entire city block of buildings three to six stories in height, built especially for the occasion. The rescue scene, where two are forced to jump for the fire nets spread far below, to escape death, is indescribably tense and thrilling. And remember, it is at the Gateway.

The Vitaphone studio narrowly escaped destruction during the filming of this tremendous fire scene, the flames consuming an entire block of business buildings spread so rapidly it was necessary to send a hurry call to Los Angeles for more fire engines. Lack of fire mains made it necessary to pump water from the three tanks on the "lot." It was only after battling the flames for five hours that they were checked.
